My Net Worthwhile® is helping others achieve their life goals through intentional, organized financial plans.

With a love for complex analysis, problem-solving, and research, Audrey supports advisors in building comprehensive financial plans. She is driven by her desire to serve others at the highest level and does so with impeccable organization and care. She is a CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ and previously served on the board of the UGA Financial Planning Alumni Association.

In college, she pursued a degree that would allow her to combine her technical and quantitative skills while helping others and building meaningful relationships. She found that financial planning was the perfect intersection between numerical analysis and personal connection. Audrey earned her Bachelor of Science in Family and Consumer Sciences from the University of Georgia and triple-majored in Financial Planning, Consumer Economics, and Housing & Management Policy.

Audrey is an active member of the First Baptist Church of Ellijay. She enjoys the great outdoors, being active, and road trips. When she isn't on an adventure, she loves to read and research — and she's passionate about expanding her knowledge so she can continue to impact the lives of others through her work positively.

Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards Inc. owns the certification marks CFP®, CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™, CFP® and CFP® in the U.S., which it awards to individuals who successfully complete CFP Board's initial and ongoing certification requirements.
