My NET WORTHWHILE™ is helping others do life well with their money, time and relationships.

Evan has a unique background in both finance and ministry/counseling, which enables him to strike an important balance with IQ and EQ. As an Advisor and Certified Financial Planner™, Evan is always thinking ahead for others. He likes to ask intentional questions to understand the “whys” behind people’s financial goals. Authentic and raw, he digs deeper to deliver a comprehensive outlook and plan—one that’s focused on helping people live a full life with no regrets.

There are two constants throughout Evan’s life—relationships and money! Starting with his paper route at nine years old, he has always worked hard, saved and invested wisely. He graduated with high honors from Georgia Tech and went on to complete the rigorous qualifications as a Certified Financial Planner (CFP®) professional. However, he also spent eight years serving with the youth ministry of Young Life, graduated with a Masters of Divinity from Columbia Seminary and served as a Chaplain at Grady Hospital. In other words, “trust” is not just another word he talks about; he has been walking alongside families in this capacity for twenty years.

Evan has been an active member of Kairos Church since its inception, is an Advisory Board member of The Shepherd Center, volunteers with Generous Giving, and co-leads the Atlanta Associates Program—a summer leadership program for college students interested in professional, spiritual and community development.
